

One of Orange County's Best New Restaurants Isn't Open to the Dining Public

The Orange County Register has all the details on one of Southern California's most interesting new restaurants: Saline. The Laguna Beach eatery sits inside the new Hotel Joaquin, but it is exclusively available for people staying at the hotel. The property's operating license does not allow for a public restaurant, so Saline's food is exclusively available for overnight guests, but critic Brad A. Johnson says that isn't stopping the staff from creating one of the best dining experiences in the whole county.

<https://la.eater.com/2019/2/11/18217149/morning-briefing-restaurant-news-los-angeles-saline-orange-county>